

Samantha Strom

Samantha Strom is a multi-hyphenate creative who is delighted to join the team as choreography coordinator for the Art as Transformation project. Sam found her love of dance at a young age. Before she could walk, she was following along with how to do ballet videos, and was enrolled in her first dance class at 2 years old. Since then, her love of dance has transformed many times, but it never goes away.

By day, Sam serves as Director of Publications at Farcountry Press, a small book publishing company, and she opened her own dance studio, Swing Out Helena, two years ago with the goal of building up a local social dance community.

This year, she is involved in multiple modern dance shows and teaches country swing and blues dancing at bars through her company Swing Out Helena.